ORDER APPROVING AMENDMENT TO INTERCONNECTION AGREEMENT

January 24, 2003

FORMAL CASE NO. TIA 99-10, IN THE MATTER OF THE APPLICATION OF
VERIZON WASHINGTON, DC, INC. FOR APPROVAL OF AN AMENDMENT
TO AN INTERCONNECTION AGREEMENT WITH PAETEC
COMMUNICATIONS, INC. UNDER SECTION 252(e) OF THE
TELECOMMUNICATIONS ACT OF 1996, Order No. 12641

1. By this Order, the Public Service Commission of the District of Columbia ("Commission") hereby approves an amendment to an interconnection agreement ("Amended Agreement") between Verizon Washington, DC Inc. ("Verizon DC") and PaeTec Communications, Inc. ("PaeTec") (collectively, "the Applicants").<sup>1</sup> This Amended Agreement was submitted to the Commission for approval pursuant to Section 252(e) of the Communications Act of 1934 ("the Act").<sup>2</sup>

I. BACKGROUND

2. On January 9, 2003, Verizon DC filed a request for approval of its interconnection agreement with PaeTec asserting that the Amendment complies with Section 252(e)(2)(A)(i) and (ii) because: 1) it has offered the same terms to all other Competitive Local Exchange Carriers; 2) the rates included in the Amendment satisfy the Federal Communications Commission ("FCC") requirement that the rates be TELRIC-compliant; and 3) the rates included in the agreement will be in force only for such period as the rates set in Order No. 12610 are stayed, or such other rates as are deemed or determined or approved by the Commission to replace the rates in Order No. 12610, become effective in accordance with applicable law. This is the first time that Verizon DC has sought approval of an interconnection agreement on these grounds. Under the circumstances, we think it important to provide a historical context for Verizon DC's request.

3. Since 1996, Verizon DC's unbundled network elements ("UNE") have been the FCC's proxy rates that the Commission adopted in lieu of establishing cost-based rates for the District of Columbia. Because the Commission never determined that these rates were TELRIC-compliant, they cannot be used to satisfy the requirements of Section 271 of the Act of 1996.<sup>3</sup> In 2000, the Eighth Circuit vacated the FCC's rules containing the proxy rates.<sup>4</sup> Without TELRIC-compliant rates, Verizon DC cannot obtain FCC approval on a request for Section 271 relief.

4. On December 6, 2002, the Commission issued Order No. 12610 in F.C. 962, which established TELRIC-compliant UNE and resale discount rates for the District of Columbia.<sup>5</sup> Shortly thereafter, on December 19, 2002, Verizon DC filed its Section 271 application with the FCC for the District of Columbia, Maryland, and West Virginia. In its 271 application, Verizon DC indicated that it intended to appeal Order No. 12610 and that, while the appeal was pending, it would use UNE rates in the District that were either lower than the previous proxy rates or comparable to rates approved in New York, adjusted where possible to account for cost differences between DC and New York. On January 6, 2003, the Commission issued Order No. 12626, which clarified that Verizon DC may not implement rates benchmarked to rates approved in New York State without first obtaining Commission approval.<sup>6</sup> Verizon DC subsequently stated that it would implement the New York rates only through an interconnection agreement approved by the Commission.<sup>7</sup>

5. On January 3, 2003, Verizon DC filed an application for reconsideration of Order No. 12610 essentially arguing that the rates established by the Commission are unreasonably low. By operation of law, implementation of the rates ordered in Order No. 12610, are stayed pending our review of the application for reconsideration and the proxy rates remain in effect. Verizon DC has not requested that the stay be lifted pursuant to D.C. Code, 2001 Ed. § 34-604(b).

6. Inasmuch as Verizon DC cannot use the proxy rates to support its Section 271 application, and because it believes the rates in Order No. 12610 are unreasonably low, Verizon DC filed the instant application ("Application") for approval of an interconnection agreement between it and PaeTec. The Amendment contains interconnection and UNE rates benchmarked to New York.<sup>8</sup> From Verizon DC's filings, the company apparently believes that using the negotiated rates under the interconnection agreement will satisfy the requirements of Section 271 of the Act.

II. SCOPE OF REVIEW

7. Pursuant to Section 252(e)(2)(A) of the Act, the Commission may only reject a negotiated agreement, or an amendment to that agreement, if the Commission finds that it: 1) discriminates against a telecommunications carrier not a party to the agreement, or 2) is not consistent with the public interest, convenience, and necessity. The Commission's analysis is constrained to solely considering these two factors when evaluating an interconnection agreement or an amendment to an existing agreement.

III. REPRESENTATIONS BY VERIZON

8. As noted above, Verizon DC maintains that the Amendment complies with both of these provisions of the Act for the following reasons. First, the same terms included in the Amendment have been offered to all CLECs operating in the District of Columbia. Second, the rates included in the Amendment satisfy the FCC's requirement of TELRIC-compliant rates because these rates are equal to, or lower than, rates for New York that have been found to be TELRIC-compliant, adjusted where possible to reflect cost differences between the District of Columbia and New York. Third, the rates included in the Amendment will be in force only for such period as the rates in Order No. 12610 are stayed, until the rates set in Order No. 12610, or such other rates are determined or approved by the Commission to replace the rates set in Order No. 12610, become effective in accordance with applicable law.<sup>9</sup>

IV. COMMENTS

9. On January 15, 2003, WorldCom filed an opposition to the rates in PaeTec's amended interconnection agreement.<sup>10</sup> WorldCom opposes the rates because: 1) Verizon DC unilaterally imposed them; 2) they violate Commission Order No. 12626 which expressly prohibits Verizon DC from using New York state's UNE rates unless approved by the Commission; and 3) Verizon DC's method of changing the existing negotiated rates does not comply with the agreed upon process for modifying an

<sup>9</sup> Section 252(e)(4) of the Act allows state commissions 90 days to review interconnection agreements or the amendments thereto. Verizon DC asks that we expedite our review. We have granted that request by completing our review within two weeks of the date it was filed.

interconnection agreement.<sup>11</sup> However, WorldCom did not assert that the Amendment fails to satisfy the requirements of Section 252(e)(2)(A) of the Act.

V. ANALYSIS AND DECISION

10. Pursuant to Section 252(d)(1)(A) of the Act, we held proceedings in F.C. 962 to establish UNE and resale discount rates that are not only cost-based, but also just and reasonable. Unlike the review we undertook in F.C. 962, a review of an interconnection agreement is not a rate-setting proceeding. As such, we do not make determinations that the rate is TELRIC-compliant, cost-based, or just and reasonable.<sup>12</sup> Instead, the parties negotiate their own rates and submit the agreement for approval.

11. We note that Verizon DC submitted the actual rates for the amended interconnection agreement, but did not offer any cost information to support them. Thus, a thorough review of the negotiated rates is not possible. Even if Verizon DC had submitted cost information, our role in reviewing a negotiated agreement is not to determine whether the rate is cost-based, TELRIC compliant, or just and reasonable. As pointed out earlier, our review of the agreement is limited to determining that the agreement is nondiscriminatory and consistent with the public interest, convenience, and necessity. After reviewing the entire record, we find that the agreement meets that narrow criteria. Therefore, the agreement must be approved.<sup>13</sup> The Commission directs the Applicants to comply with the procedures set forth in Sections 2600-2603.1 of the Commission's rules, to obtain Commission approval of any revised agreement into which the Applicants may enter.<sup>14</sup>

<sup>11</sup> Although Verizon DC filed a response to WorldCom's opposition in F.C. No. 962 and F.C. No. 1011, it did not file it in this case. See letter from Natalie O. Ludaway, Verizon, to Sanford M. Speight, Acting Commission Secretary, dated January 17, 2003.

<sup>12</sup> Nor do we determine whether a negotiated rate satisfies the criteria for Section 271 relief. That determination is within the exclusive province of the FCC.

<sup>13</sup> We note that our colleague agrees with this decision although he has inexplicably chosen to issue a concurring opinion that does not deviate from the majority view in any meaningful way.

Order No. 12641

January 24, 2003

FORMAL CASE NO. TIA 99-10, IN THE MATTER OF THE APPLICATION OF
VERIZON WASHINGTON, DC, INC. FOR APPROVAL OF AN AMENDMENT
TO AN INTERCONNECTION AGREEMENT WITH PAETEC
COMMUNICATIONS, INC. UNDER SECTION 252(e) OF THE
TELECOMMUNICATIONS ACT OF 1996, Order No. 12641

1. By this Order, the Public Service Commission of the District of Columbia ("Commission") hereby approves an amendment to an interconnection agreement ("Amended Agreement") between Verizon Washington, DC Inc. ("Verizon DC") and PaeTec Communications, Inc. ("PaeTec") (collectively, "the Applicants").<sup>1</sup> This Amended Agreement was submitted to the Commission for approval pursuant to Section 252(e) of the Communications Act of 1934 ("the Act").<sup>2</sup> I concur with the majority opinion, however, I am compelled to comment on the dictum contained in the majority opinion.

I. BACKGROUND

2. On December 6, 2002, the Commission issued Order No. 12610 in F.C. 962, which established TELRIC-compliant UNE and resale discount rates for the District of Columbia.<sup>3</sup> Shortly thereafter, on December 19, 2002, Verizon DC filed its Section 271 application with the FCC for the District of Columbia. In its Section 271 application,

<sup>3</sup> Formal Case No. 962, In the Matter of the Implementation of the District of Columbia Telecommunications Competition Act of 1996 and Implementation of the Telecommunications Act of 1996 ("F.C. No. 962"), Order No. 12610, rel. December 9, 2002.

Verizon DC indicated that it intended to appeal Order No. 12610 and that, while the appeal was pending, it would use UNE rates in the District that were either lower than the previous proxy rates or comparable to TELRIC-compliant rates approved in New York, adjusted where possible to account for cost differences between DC and New York. On January 6, 2003, the Commission issued Order No. 12626, which discussed that Verizon DC may not implement rates benchmarked to rates approved in New York State without first obtaining Commission approval.<sup>4</sup> I filed a dissent to the majority opinion in both Order No. 12610<sup>5</sup> and Order No. 12626.<sup>6</sup> Verizon DC subsequently clarified that it would implement the New York TELRIC rates only through an interconnection agreement approved by this Commission.<sup>7</sup>

II. SCOPE OF REVIEW

3. As the majority opinion indicates, the Commission may only reject a negotiated agreement, or an amendment to that agreement, if the Commission finds that it: 1) discriminates against a telecommunications carrier not a party to the agreement, or 2) is not consistent with the public interest, convenience, and necessity.<sup>8</sup> The Commission's analysis is constrained solely to considering these two factors when evaluating an interconnection agreement or an amendment to an existing agreement.

III. DISCUSSION

4. Verizon DC maintains that the Amendment complies with both of these provisions of the Act for the following reasons. First, the same terms included in the Amendment have been offered to all CLECs operating in the District of Columbia. Second, the rates included in the Amendment satisfy the FCC's requirement of TELRIC-compliant rates because these rates are equal to, or lower than, rates for New York that have been found to be TELRIC-compliant, adjusted where possible to reflect cost differences between the District of Columbia and New York. Third, the rates included in the Amendment will be in force only for such period as the rates in Order No. 12610 are stayed. At such time that the rates set in Order No. 12610 are affirmed, or such other rates are determined or approved by the Commission to replace the rates set in Order No. 12610, become effective in accordance with applicable law, those new rates will replace the rates adopted in this agreement.

5. This Commission is neither charged with the responsibility nor the authority to render a decision regarding whether or not the rates embodied in the interconnection agreement that is the subject of this Order, meets the FCC's requirements regarding TELRIC-compliant UNE rates. The FCC is solely responsible for this decision. The majority opinion goes to great lengths to discuss this issue that is not germane to the narrow scope of this Commission's inquiry in the context of reviewing this interconnection agreement. As stated earlier, this Commission's role is limited to a review of whether or not the agreement: 1) discriminates against a telecommunications carrier not a party to the agreement, or 2) is inconsistent with the public interest, convenience, and necessity. With this in mind, all dictum regarding Verizon DC's quest to gain Section No. 271 approval at the FCC, is irrelevant to this proceeding.

6. It is also important to note that on January 15, 2003, despite having no standing in this proceeding with respect to this agreement, WorldCom filed an opposition to the rates in PaeTec's amended interconnection agreement.<sup>9</sup> WorldCom opposes the rates because in their opinion: 1) Verizon DC unilaterally imposed them; 2) they violate Commission Order No. 12626 which expressly prohibits Verizon DC from using New York state's UNE rates unless approved by the Commission, and; 3) Verizon DC's method of changing the existing negotiated rates does not comply with the agreed upon process for modifying an interconnection agreement.<sup>10</sup> However, WorldCom also states that "[i]f Verizon chooses to bill WorldCom the New York Benchmark rates, payment by WorldCom of its Verizon DC bills in no way constitutes acceptance of or agreement with Verizon's unilaterally imposed UNE rates."<sup>11</sup> WorldCom's admitted propensity to take advantage of the lower New York Benchmarked UNE rates minimizes the level of intensity and weight of WorldCom's protests.

7. After reviewing the entire record, the majority finds that the agreement meets the narrow criteria for review articulated above. Therefore, the agreement must be approved. I concur with this holding.
